Spring into April

Goodbye grey skies, bare trees and big coats – the April Classroom to Careers newsletter has landed and is celebrating the arrival of a new season. From iconic on-screen roles to exciting Skills Show news, prepare to fill your basket with a fresh crop of careers inspiration. On your marks, get set... GO!

As seen on TV

Over 70% of Gen Z admit to having considered a role after seeing it played out on TV. Want to be the real-life Emily in Paris? We've browsed the opportunities featured on our new Work Experience resource to demonstrate how everyone's favourite fictional careers can be your reality.

Bookworms assemble!

Curated by publishing giant Penguin, the National Teen Book Club is a brilliant opportunity for budding writers to sharpen their critical thinking skills. As well as joining monthly discussions with other members, you'll also hear from influencers within the industry, including the author of the final month's read. Ask your teacher to sign you up today.

Creativity matters

We recently met with Pinewood Studios who told us that they're on track to become one of the largest film and TV studios in the world, bringing 50,000 new creative jobs to Buckinghamshire by 2025! If that doesn't scream "growth sector", we don't know what does.

News bulletin

- Stoke Mandeville Stadium should think about giving us a spare a key – we'll be back on Tuesday 13th June for an event that focuses on overcoming barriers to employment by showcasing inclusive employers and next steps organisations.
- Nominations for The Buckinghamshire School Awards 2023, including a category sponsored by Bucks Skills Hub (the Inspiring Futures Award, naturally) are now open.

Feeling frazzled?

With exams just around the corner, it's no surprise Stress Awareness Month takes place in April. The timing also allows us to close this newsletter with a reminder of our five simple, yet effective (if we do day so ourselves), tips for finding calm when the fog descends.
